DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1, 3, 5, 6, 10, 11, 13, 14, 16-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Kajiyama et al, US Patent 6,283,764. Kajiyama discloses a storage medium playback system comprising a storage medium 103 having a first session 103a having music data, second session 103b having data tracks (display data, video data, etc.), and a main storage device 201, sound output device 107, CRT 102, and operating system 111 which is part of a personal computer 101. The PC 101 reads on a stream data reproducing apparatus for reading out the stream data stored in a recording medium 103. The controller 109 reads on a reading processing portion for reading out the stream data (music data) and action definition information (reproduction information) whereby the action position is the time information (see figure 7) and the action data corresponding to the action position is a display action of associated words that accompany the music data. The reproduction processing portion is the sound output device 107. The PC 101 is the application executing portion for executing an application and the viewer software 110 which is loaded into the PC 101 from the storage medium 103 is the monitoring processing portion for notifying the application when reproduction reaches an action position (see column 8 lines 12-22). Claims 1, 5, and 6 are met. Per claim 3, the storage medium 103 is portable. As to claims 10, 13 and 16, the action position is based on a time line, as illustrated in figures 5 and 7. Per claims 11, 14 and 17, the objective of the Kajiyama invention is to synchronize the music data to data in the second session area of the storage medium through the use of the viewer software 110. Regarding claims 18-20, the action position information and action data are co-located in the second session 103b.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 21-23 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kajiyama in view of Merrick et al, US Patent 6,636,219. Kajiyama discloses that the action position information identifies a predetermined action position in the sound data (through a time parameter) but does not disclose that the synchronized operation achieves a lip sync effect in synchronization with the reproduction of the stream data. Merrick discloses a system and method for preparing animated characters which uses a dialog database 125 which stores audio clips (stream data) and a RealAudio choreography file 138, said file containing lip synchronization information which corresponds to the dialog selected from the database 125. Thus, it was well known at the time of invention to synchronize a lip sync effect with stream data. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of invention to provide a lip sync effect via synchronization with the music data in first session 103a by incorporating that capability in the data tracks of second session 103b for the purpose of imparting a well known entertainment feature.
